Bentley's SELECT subscriptions are designed for organizations of all sizes, providing flexible licensing options, product training, software upgrades, technical support, and unprecedented access to Bentley's broad portfolio of solutions for today's architecture, engineering, construction, and owner-operator organizations.

Meeting the Challenge

The infrastructure lifecycle presents many software challenges that subscriptions can mitigate. Among the most critical are:

- The need to constantly adapt to changing software requirements, including matching the mix and quantities of software tools to changing project needs, and ensuring they're available to the teams that need them wherever they are located.
- Overcoming challenges that typically occur during the employment of highly technical software – problems that can slow or halt production and waste precious time and resources.
- The costly challenge of keeping software up to date to improve productivity and project quality.

Effectively meeting each of these challenges is crucial to your success in designing, documenting, delivering, and operating high-performing and cost-effective buildings, bridges, plants, and other infrastructure assets.

“Our firm is small, and tight budgets are a daily fact of life. Bentley’s new SELECT Open Access subscription allows us to play in the big leagues, paying only for what we need on a per-project basis . . . no longer do we have to do without because we can’t afford to buy the software, much of which we may not need again until the next big project, in one lump sum. Plus, we now have access to top level training and support resources. Try that with ‘those other guys!’ – In a word ... Thanks!”
